See the U.S. Constitution come to life for your students as they create the book. It breaks down the different parts of the Preamble, and this activity encourages them to use a dictionary to look up unfamiliar words. There is also a place for students to rewrite the Preamble in their own words, and most popular with the students! Recitation Collection. Throughout the lesson students will use cards that have pieces of the preamble, students take this alternate assessment. This is a sample to a larger paid product that I have available in my store, about the U.S. Constitution. You can use the Preamble Scramble Block Poster as a bulletin board display, hang on the classroom wall, classroom wall, classroom door, hallway, school entrance, library, gym or any place you see fit. Do your students know it sets goals for the country? Vocabulary - the first activity is a sentence expansion technique called "but, because, so." Students complete the sentence using each conjunction then write an independent sentence containing the target vocabulary word and one of the three conjunctions. The result is a beautiful, fun, one of a kind pop-art to hang in the hall. The video closes with The Vietnam Memorial, overlaid with audio of fifth grade students reciting the Preamble. No problem!
